Prologue

In the previous KOF, the existence of puzzling and secret alliance of "Nests" became clear. Their activities quieted down soon after the death of Krizarid and they were not heard from much. It was at that time the occurrences of worldwide terrorism began to grow at an alarming rate. The Heidern fighting brigade had gotten word that these instances where the dirty work of 'K' and 'Maxima' and they set out to put tails on those two. However, it was just at that time that KOF was starting...

Several weeks later, the worldwide fighter's tournament began and low and behold among the names of participating teams were none other than 'K' and 'Maxima.' Just at that time as well, as if being drawn out into the open by those two, Nests also began to show more activity... or was this just a coincidence... Now, the violence begins anew... Welcome, once again, to the King of Fighters...

Explanation of the Rules

[Another Striker]

This time, a dedicated back-up striker called [Another Striker] is set for each character. Players can select whether to use the normal character or another striker when determining the order of strikers using Order Select.

[Team Battles]

■ Match type

Teams are composed of three athletes and one striker. Strikers can use one striker bomb during the match and they can jump in to help teammates at any time during a match. (However, the frequency of appearances for this character is limited.)

■ Game Rules

The first member of each appearing team fights one round. When a match is decided, the loser is replaced by the second member of his/her team and the victor remains to fight the next match with the same life gauge level as at the end of the previous match. (Life gauge power is restored slightly, however, with victory and time bonuses.) The first team to beat 3 members is the winner.

Single Battles

■ Match type

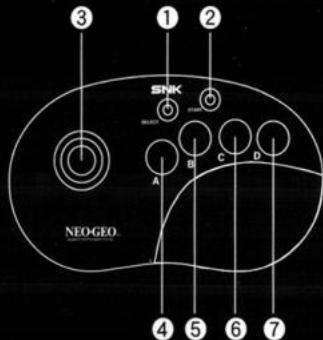

In single battles, too, a striker is assigned to a single player. As with team battles, the Striker can jump in at any time to back-up his fighting teammate during a match. (However, the frequency of appearances for this character is limited.)

■ Match Rules

In a three-fall match, the first to win two rounds (two points) wins the match. During a match, life levels are fully restored for each player after each round is decided and action proceeds to the next round.

* The number of rounds needed to win a match can be changed with [BATTLE CONFIG.] in the OPTION MODE. (See page 19)
